Is your baby bright, healthy and pretty? If so, send in a photograph showing its most graceful pose, and you may win the ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS which this newspaper will award each week for the finest baby.

Pictures of four fine American babies from 12 many different cities are printed on this page to-day. Look them over carefully and see if your own little one is not a match or more than a match for any of them. Then select the most attractive photograph you have of your child and mail it to this paper, being careful to write baby's full name and address on the photograph, together with the parents' name and address.

This contest is limited to children not over six years of age. It should be remembered that photographs submitted cannot be returned. Mail your baby's picture today to

Once More Foxy Grandpa Proves Too Clever for the Boys, and Beats Them at Their Own Game!

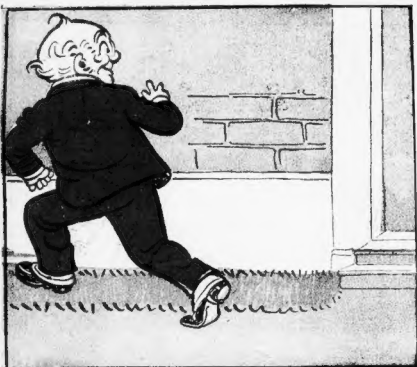

1. GRANDPA: "Wonder where the boys are. They are late this morning"

2. GRANDPA: "I'll go and look for them."

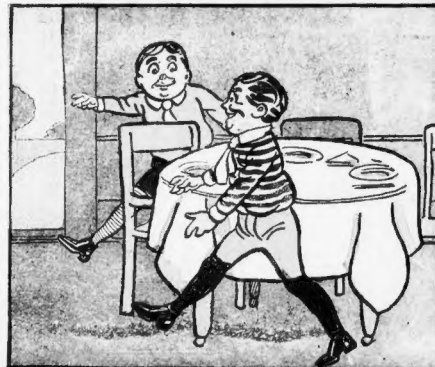

3. BOYS: "Oh, say, but this is going to be a fine joke on Gran'pa."

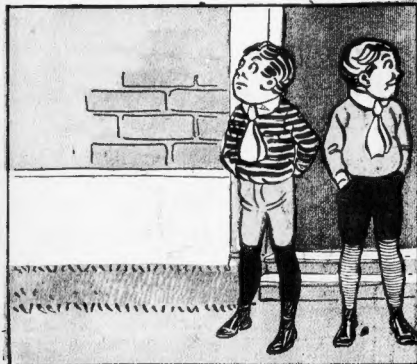

4. GRANDPA: "I'll just see if I can't get even with those young mischiefs."

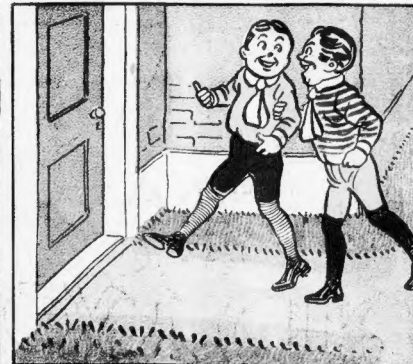

5. BOYS: "This time we certainly will have a great laugh at the old gentleman."

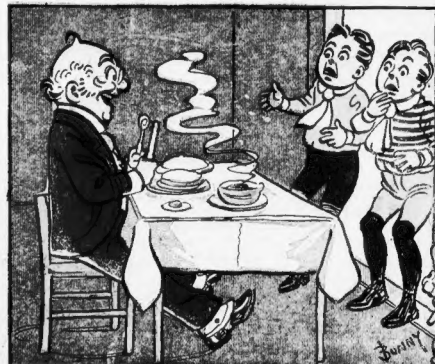

6. BOYS: "It's strange Gran'pa doesn't come back. Let's see what is keeping him so long."

7. BOYS: "Where in the world has he gone?"

8. BOYS: "Perhaps he's in the kitchen. Let's look in anyway and see how soon breakfast will be ready."

9. GRANDPA: "Why, hello, boys! Haven't you had breakfast yet? I thought I would eat here for a change."

SOCIETY LEADERS

No. 3.

MRS. GEORGE J. GOULD, whose beautiful photograph is reproduced on this page, is one of the most interesting and charming women in New York's smartest society.

There was a time when Mrs. Gould, in spite of long continued and lavish entertainments, was not regarded as being exactly within the sacred circle, but a great Christmas festivity at Georgian Court, Lakewood, settled the question. It was a combination of amateur theatricals, in which Mrs. Gould played with brilliant success, and of old-fashioned Christmas high jinks. Of course no woman in society could surpass Mrs. Gould in amateur theatricals, for she was once, as the beautiful Edith Kingston, the leading woman of a famous theatrical company, in giving society the benefit of her trained talent she showed courage and enterprise. After this entertainment society surrendered completely to the mistress of Georgian Court.

Mrs. Gould has earned an enviable reputation for good nature and kindness, as may be judged from the crop of stories which have followed her long tours with her husband on his Western railroads. During a recent journey through a very rugged and out-of-the-way part of Missouri the train came to a stop. A typical inhabitant of the country, with trousers in his boots and unbarbered hair, came up to Mr. Gould, who was standing by the train, and said to him:

"Say, mister, we have a new baby at my dought, and we ain't got no soap. My old woman is so stuck up over it that she's making me drive fourteen miles to town to get some nice smelling soap, and I thought maybe you'd help me out by givin' me a piece of soap outen one of them fancy cars."

Mr. Gould laughed and said he would see what he could do, but Mrs. Gould had already heard the request and had wanted to make up a package consisting of six pieces of pure, delicately scented soap, six fine towels and a number of tinned delicacies. When the farmer had received the package and placed it in his wagon, he remarked before driving away:

"Say, mister, you'll make be some relation to Santa Claus."

At another lonely spot a tired-looking old woman and a little girl clambered on board the private car while the attendants were not looking.

They were somewhat impressed by the magnificence of their surroundings, but vaguely supposed that they were the result of the great improvements in railroad travel they had heard about.

When Mrs. Gould saw them she asked if they would like something to eat or drink.

"Thank you kindly, mum," said the woman. "We had something to eat before leavin' him, but that was before sunrise."

Mrs. Gould then ordered her maid to buy the table, and soon a light luncheon was served.

"We are going to have luncheon," said Mrs. Gould. "Won't you take a bite?"

Over the meal the woman told her story. She was going to Las Vegas, N. M., to attend the marriage of her daughter to a young stockman. She had not seen a railroad train since leaving the East twenty years before. There was only one thing better to make her perfectly happy. She had no money to buy her daughter a wedding present.

"What did you want to buy her?" asked Mrs. Gould.

"I had set my heart on a brooch."

Mrs. Gould left the table and went to a jewel case in the safe and brought out a handsome Oriental brooch from the World's Fair—a gorgeous piece of enamel work framed with stones and made of gold, just the thing to excite admiration in a primitive Western community.

"How would this do?" asked Mrs. Gould, smiling.

The old woman almost cried with joy when she looked at the brooch.

"But how can you spare it?" she asked. "It must be worth five or six dollars."

Mrs. Gould reassured her on this point, and the luncheon was resumed. At Las Vegas the daughter was waiting on the platform to meet her mother. She was astonished and delighted by the unexpected present, and it is safe to say that she soon found out, if she did not already know, that the handsome brooch was worth about $100, instead of $5.

Such acts as these credited to Mrs. Gould had graciously to her personality, and it is a pity that they are not more common among the American millionaire class.

To Stop the Cruelties of Human Vivisection.

Shocking Evidences of Wanton and Unnecessary Operations On Men, Women and Children. Fatal Tests of Poisons and New Drugs On Unsuspecting Patients and Brutal Surgery on Living Animals, Fishes and Birds.

BY GEORGE BERNARD SHAW.

VIVISECTION is the name given to the practice of cutting open the bodies of human beings and animals, for the purpose of observing the internal organs, and the effects of various drugs and poisons. It is a practice which has been carried on for centuries, and which has been the cause of much suffering and death. In the case of human beings, it is often carried out on the poor and the sick, who are used as guinea-pigs for the experiments of the medical profession. In the case of animals, it is often carried out on the most sensitive and intelligent of creatures, such as dogs, cats, and monkeys. The results of these experiments are often used to justify the most brutal and unnecessary operations on human beings.

A NEW movement is organized in England and America to put a stop to the horrible vivisection of human beings and animals, to the testing of poisons on the most sensitive and intelligent of creatures, such as dogs, cats, and monkeys. The results of these experiments are often used to justify the most brutal and unnecessary operations on human beings.

Processes of growth, as well as the opening up of new channels of association, are so doubt connected, yet there are no doubt many cases in which the latter is wholly dependent on the latter only. These are of such a nature that they cannot be ascribed to the influence of the nervous system, or to the influence of the vascular supply, or anything but the influence of the nervous system.

Between groups of neurons there is a very close association of the kind in which the nervous system is made up of the nervous system, and the nervous system is made up of the nervous system.

In these cases and others of the kind which will not be mentioned here, it is evident that a barrier had suddenly been removed, and the nervous system was free to act.

Sam Loyd's Cut-Price Puzzle.

THE milliner has already marked the price of this hat down twice, as shown on the price card attached to the hat.

She is now going to cut the price down a third time, which will bring the hat to cost price.

Can you figure out the cost price of the hat? If you can, we will reward you with one of the 1000 puzzle books which will be distributed among those who send in the best answers to this interesting puzzle.

NO. 326

DAMN FASHION has created no end of pretty overblouse effects this season, but for simple beauty and style this one is sure to appeal to the woman of good taste.

The development was in chiffon, broadcloth, and a pretty feature of the design is the slashed collar that outlines the low V-shaped neck. A broad tie of soft silk, a shade or two darker than the waist, which is a light tan, is drawn through the openings and tied in front.

If preferred, the collar may be made plain. The sleeves are in the fashionable mandarin style, and two deep tucks at the shoulders give the necessary fulness in front.

All the materials of the season are suitable to the design, such as silk, cashmere, silk and cloth. For 36 inches bust measure 1 1/2 yards of 44-inch material will be required.

The patterns have been cut to sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure, and to obtain one of the patterns, carefully fill in the accompanying blank and mail with 10 cents in silver or stamps to

EDITORIAL SECTION

BOSTON AMERICAN, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1907.

YES, HE COULD BREAK IT

YOU'VE seen elephants tied in the circus or the menagerie.

Around one hind leg there is a big strap or chain, very powerful, fastened to a ring in the wall or to a stake in the ground.

The elephant thus fastened stands swinging his head, usually with the captive foot tilted backward. That is his life, and he gets used to it.

He gets so thoroughly used to it after a while that it is not necessary to bind him with real iron chains at all.

In India thousands of elephants are employed in the army, in agriculture, lumbering, etc. The mahouts who care for the big beasts have great respect for them, but they also understand the elephant's weaknesses.

Long ago one of these Indian elephant keepers, who had mislaid the chain to tether his elephant, thought he'd try an experiment. He took a handful of straw, fashioned it into a rope, tied that around the elephant's leg, and waited to see what would happen.

The slightest pull of the big foot would have broken the flimsy binding. BUT THE ELEPHANT NEVER TRIED TO BREAK IT.

He said to himself in his big, heavy head: "Here I am, tied up as usual. There's no escape. I must stand here until the thing that controls me comes to untie me in the morning."

All the elephant keepers know now that you can tie an elephant with a wisp of straw just as well as with a chain strong enough to hold a hundred elephants.

If the average human being should see a big elephant tied with straw reaching his trunk forward eagerly, never realizing that he could break his bonds, the human being would smile at the poor elephant and pity his ignorance.

What would the elephant think if he could see the average human being also, fastened tight BY HIS BANDS OF STRAW?

What about the habits that hold us and that we imagine to be too strong to be broken?

How many of us are tied up and made wretched by any one of a dozen foolish, harmful habits that spoil our lives. We have been tied up for a long time, and, like the foolish elephant with the straw around his leg, we think that we are tied forever.

Any one of us could break away, tear himself free WITH ONE HONEST EFFORT if he would make that effort.

At this particular time there are hundreds of thousands of men worried by their own extravagance and the extravagance of their families—only a habit, A BAND OF STRAW. They could break it if they would, and by breaking it they might save themselves and their families anxiety and humiliation in the future. But they stand there like the elephant and think that they CAN'T get away.

It is so with all of our vices except those which absolutely destroy the nerve tissue. The latter are in a separate class, for they tear even a remaining fragment of the will is stronger than a habit. A sick elephant could break a chain of straw. A nerve-weak man can break of straw hold many of us? We smoke too much, and we think we can't stop that. We spend money in gambling, and we allow that ments that bring contempt upon us, and we haven't the energy to step over to the other side, the truthful side. Personal vanity, foolish fort, one wrench, to be free. But ninety-nine out of a hundred of us stand still, tied fast, hopeless, resigned THROUGH HABIT.

Habit is a powerful master, powerful chiefly BECAUSE WE DON'T FIGHT AGAINST HIM. You read in this newspaper some time ago, perhaps, of the elephant in a great American zoological garden that had been vicious and had been chained fast to one spot so that he couldn't move at all. He was denied the relative liberty of the ordinary captive elephant. All four of his legs were tied. After awhile his viciousness passed away with early youth. The keeper removed the chains that held his legs, that he might be free to walk around his cage.

But the elephant did not stir. He looked down as the chains were removed. His legs were free. BUT HE WOULD NOT USE THEM. Habit was too strong, he had stood still too long and would not move.

So it is with many of us. Our wills are free, our minds are free to use them if we will. But the centuries of superstition and dull thinking behind us tie us down. And the habit of standing still mentally, acquired in our own lifetime, ties us down.

We are free to explore the regions of new knowledge and of new thought. But the great majority of us, like the poor old elephant, stand still, gossiping, idling, waiting quietly in the same old intellectual spot for the end of a life that is without meaning BECAUSE IT IS WITHOUT PROGRESS.

Do you know any man in a rut? Show him this picture, or send it to him. Have you any boy or girl in your house whom you would influence toward original thinking, independent action? Do you know anybody always inclined to reject the new idea because it is new? You may use this picture effectively, adding to it a few brief, strong words of your own in place of this long-drawn-out editorial comment.

Only a Band of Straw Holds Him. Why DOESN'T He Break It? Why Don't WE Break Our Own Weak Fetters?

I have a wild sport to do
You're the shade, and I like the sun—
You're an even pace.
I do in with the crowd and run
And then rest after the race.
I like danger and storm and strife,
You're a peaceful soul.
You're the life of the party, my friend,
You're the quietest of the lot.
You're the danger zone,
You're the safe place to stay.
You're the heart, I'm the hand,
I'm the head, you're the feet.
I must see you late, just before, my friend,
For so it goes, my dear friend,
We must follow our own paths to the end.
But I trust we shall meet—in time.

If you prefer one color and I another why should we quarrel about it or try to convince each other that only your favorite color or mine is the color?

How very foolish that would be.
All creeds proceed from mortal ideas of the Creator of this superb universe.
It makes no more difference what or who you call that Creator than what you call the

Has it ever occurred to you how vast the creation of a Creator must be toward infinity?

All people who persecute and proselytize in religion believe in a Personal God. They persecute those who think differently because they want God to be pleased with their God for His sake. Yet that very person who says, if He goes to judgment along with His creatures, must possess first of all the

Why there is not tomorrow the first and most important victim in why our zeal to end slavery?

So long as our friends and neighbors do not offend you by polydames and immorality and vulgarity, you have no right to undertake punishing their conduct.

It is an impertinence and an affront to attempt it.

It seems that the only way to state your belief and your reasons for it is to say: men wise or foolish, men the good or the bad, and some men even to be pitied, have decided that men perish if they know that they are not to be pitied.

Keep still and let it be and let your belief speak.

That is the very best way to win a people that you have a good and true religion.

So, h₁ is a habit of contemptuous pity, or a requested disdain, or a criticism apart toward the creeds or religious convictions of others, if those others live decently conducted lives, you are far from winking in the face of the world.

While you may know that you are taking the only right way for yourself, remember there are other ways, which are just as "right," for other souls to find the path to "right."

Be sure that you are motivated of all the virtues and the most needed in the world.

Who Gets the enormous Profits.

One does not have to study much to find out who gets the added profit. The expert says that his war profits him only a few dollars. He is not the one to get the big profit. The big profit goes to the hand, for the machine, which is getting more and more for the dollar. It is the machine that makes the money and produces the use of the product, which is the profit. The profit is the money that the machine makes. The machine is the one that makes the profit. The machine is the one that makes the profit. The machine is the one that makes the profit.

With these facts, that help the nation, the machine is the one that makes the profit. The machine is the one that makes the profit. The machine is the one that makes the profit.

100 BURIED BY FLAMING RUINS AS FLOOR CAVES IN AT WATERBURY RALLY

Candidate for Mayor, State Senator and Prominent Politicians Injured in Building's Collapse.

WATERBURY, Conn., Oct. 5.—One hundred men were injured, several it is believed fatally, in the collapse of the North End Athletic Club building at a Republican rally to-night. After the fall of the big structure the ruins took fire, and burned for an hour while the victims lay shivering beneath the flames.

Among those hurt are: John E. Bess, a Republican candidate for Mayor; Waterbury, State Senator Irving H. Chase, one of the best known politicians in Connecticut; Harry Lewis, a prominent party worker, who is dying of his injuries in the hospital.

Superintendent Larkell of the Waterbury Clock Factory, who was in the building, said that he saw the building begin to fall at 10:30 p. m. and that he saw the ruins take fire at 11:30 p. m.

Meat of Human Bodies Buried. The collapse occurred a few minutes after 10 p. m. and the electric lights went out. The building was a three-story structure, and the floor caves in under the weight of the people. The ruins were a mass of twisted iron and broken masonry, and the bodies of the victims were buried beneath it.

Clifford Hartridge Asks Aid of Police to Find His Missing Wife

Cambridge Woman, Wife of Thaw's Attorney, Leaves Home; No Trace of Her Obtained.

New York, Oct. 6.—Clifford W. Hartridge, one of the attorneys for Harry M. Thaw in his recent trial for slaying Stanford White, called at police headquarters to-day to secure police aid in the search for his wife, who disappeared three days ago.

It is reported that Mrs. Hartridge's disappearance may have been connected with the Thaw case, but no definite information has been obtained.

Start Movement to Erect Memorial to Archbishop Williams

Members of St. Vincent de Paul Society Plan to Raise Statue.

A movement for the erection of a memorial to the late Archbishop Williams will be started to-day at the convention of the St. Vincent de Paul Society in Boston College Hall, where a statue of the archbishop will be unveiled. The statue is the work of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, and is a tribute to the late archbishop's life and work.

Ettrala Passengers Tell Startling
Stories of Wireless Messages.

New York, Oct. 6.—Anxiety is growing for the Ettrala liner, overdue at Queenstown since 5 o'clock Saturday morning.

Among the passengers on the Ettrala the same line, in port to-day after a long voyage, reports were current that the Ettrala's wireless operator received the Ettrala's call several times, but that to his sorrow there was no answer. He said that the Ettrala's wireless operator was not at the Ettrala's wireless station, and that the Ettrala's wireless operator was not at the Ettrala's wireless station.

Not only has the Ettrala failed to reach Queenstown, but so wireless messages have been received from her, though she should have been in communication with the Ettrala coast at least twice before the time for her docking there.

One rumor is that the Ettrala's shaft is broken. Another has it that she suffered a severe leak as she is trying to port back to New York.

Whitney.
Governor—Henry M. Whitney of Brookline.
Lieutenant-Governor—George A. Schofield, Ipswich.
Secretary of State—Odell Z. E. Chace, Holyoke.
Treasurer—Daniel D. Deherly, Westfield.
Attorney-General—James L. Deherly, Springfield.
Auditor—Joseph A. Cony, East Boston.

Springfield, Oct. 6.—Daniel J. Kiley of the West End of Boston, State Senator Frank J. Linahan of Ward 13, South Boston, and Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell of Ward 20, Dorchester, packed the Democratic State Convention here in the Court Square Theatre to-day, and amid riotous scenes as could have been faithfully pictured only by the biograph, robbed Henry M. Whitney of the nomination for governor and proffered it to General Charles W. Bartlett.

The Whitney people, angry but helpless against the solid front presented by the 200 "strong-arm" gentlemen with whom the convention had been packed, held a convention all their own, at the back of the theatre, and nominated their leader.

The Court Square Theatre was packed with Bartlett people early this morning before even the first of the Whitney people had put in an appearance. Some of the early-Bartlett folks may have been—and probably were—duly accredited delegates to the convention. But many of them were not.

WHITNEY MEN PRACTICALLY LOCKED OUT
By trickery the great mass of Whitney men were kept out of the theatre until the convention had been called to order. Then, for a time, the doors were practically locked against them, so that 200 of them never got into the convention hall at all.

The "convention hall" was nothing more nor less than a riot, from start to finish.

To say that either of the two tickets was an expression of the desire of the Democrats of Massachusetts would be obviously to state an untruth. Not twenty men in the theatre knew what was being transacted on the stage.

When "Dan" Kiley declared a motion "carried," the delegates out in front didn't have the slightest conception of what it was all about.

Because of the "bunkies" brought into the theatre under the special patronage of Kiley, Linahan and O'Connell, and the noise that those bunkies made and the talk that was started, nothing that was going on on the stage could be heard from the galleries.

The "bunkies" did most of the shouting in the theatre, and in the most part they looked to Frank J. Linahan for their guidance, and Linahan, standing in the centre aisle, with his hands resting on the brass rail back of the speakers, kept them with the right signals. They didn't know what they were doing, or what it was all about.

FUGLISTS GUARDED BARTLETT FOLKS
Although the Bartlett men apparently nominated John Alden Thayer of Worcester for the Lieutenant-Governorship, not fifty men in the theatre knew who had been nominated until they read about it in the news of the next morning. In the front of the hall, scattered among the early arrivals was a band of professional pugilists. "Young" Walcott was there, an "Old" Freeman, and "Old" Robinson of Cambridge, and others of the same stamp. In one of the proscenium boxes were seated four ex-pugilists. The roomers of Ward 8, Boston, were represented by five rough-and-tumble men.

"When he comes to Boston he calls on us. The last time he called was about a year ago," she said. "I think that was his last visit here."

"I have heard," said Miss Polk, "that Helen is married."

"Yes," she called at the home of Mrs. Georgianna E. Upham at No. 236 Pond Street, where she lives, and said that she was on the trip from Seattle. "The cause was her daughter, Myrtle, and she was to place it in some Western college."

"The man," she said, "is a white man, and she is a white girl. They were in Seattle after visiting relatives in Oregon. This was two years ago, and she is now in the city."

"I like Mr. Jones," the neighbor would answer and I could be left equal to one of my husband's friends, said Mr. Polk. "I think of him as well as I. I should not be interested at the trouble."

Mrs. Polk is about the average height and weight, with a pair of large brown eyes and a smile that is said to be easily applied to her.

LOZIER CARS STILL IN THE HANDS OF THE CASTLES.

New Models of This Popular Automobile Expected in Boston This Month.

The R. C. & C. D. Castle Company has received announcements for the Massachusetts State agency for the Lozier cars, and the success which they had with this car during the past year indicates that with the available reputation the car has made in Boston, next year's sale will be largely increased. In New York city, the headquarters of the Lozier Company, the car has within the past year come into prominence as one of the recognized leaders.

While the Lozier car has only within the past three years come into prominence as one of the leaders, the seventeen years of experience which the Lozier Company has had in the building of marine motors has placed them in position to understand the requirements of automobile motor construction. The positive merit of the Lozier car was so well known that early buyers recommended them freely to their friends, with the result that the growth of sales in New York city district has been phenomenal.

The Lozier line of new cars for 1908 has been announced, and will include an automobile of both four and six cylinder character and of both four and six cylinder character.

Mr. Castle has just returned from New York city, and states that the new models are expected to arrive in Boston on October 20.

MOTOR INDUSTRY NOT AFFECTED BY HARD TIMES

BY J. C. KERRISON.

After all has been said and done, the cry of hard times has been raised again and again, but the automobile industry is not affected by hard times.

The trade is full of promise, and what is more, it is full of confidence. It is not a question of whether the automobile industry is affected by hard times, but a question of whether it is not affected by hard times.

The motor industry is not affected by hard times, and it is not a question of whether it is not affected by hard times, but a question of whether it is not affected by hard times.

Local Conditions Satisfactory. The cry of hard times has been raised again and again, but the automobile industry is not affected by hard times.

September Meeting Good. And what is the result of the meeting? The result is that the automobile industry is not affected by hard times.

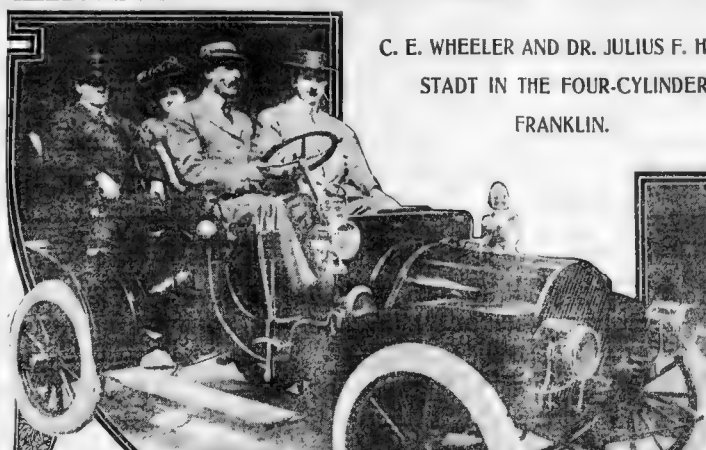

F. B. Stearns Praises the Ball-Bearing Motor

At the recent meeting of the mechanical branch of the Association of Automobile Manufacturers, the ball-bearing motor was the subject of a very extensive discussion. For some time the engineers of the association have been experimenting with the new method and theories for the construction of cars to give greater motor efficiency than heretofore.

A carefully prepared paper on the subject was read by Frank Stearns of the F. B. Stearns Company, and the result was that the ball-bearing motor was the subject of a very extensive discussion.

The use of ball bearings in a motor, while a very radical departure from what has been practiced, is not a new thing. It is a question of whether it is not affected by hard times, but a question of whether it is not affected by hard times.

WED IN HOSPITAL TO THWART DEATH

Dramatic Ceremony Unites 68-Year-Old Sufferer and His 63-Year-Old Sweetheart.

NURSES ARE WITNESSES

Realizing possibly on a bed of pain at the Boston City Hospital is Edward J. Allen, sixty-eight years old, of 20 West street, Boston, who at his side is his sixty-three-year-old bride, less than a week, who was Miss Fannie Sawyer. They were married last Sunday at Bed No. 15 in Ward W of the New Henry L. Wagoner Hospital, at the Methodist Episcopal Church at Tremont and West Chestnut streets.

Allen had a long and severe illness, and his death was expected. His bride, Fannie Sawyer, was a devoted nurse and had been attending to him for some time.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henry L. Wagoner, pastor of the church. It was a simple but touching affair, with many nurses and doctors present as witnesses.

Allen's health is now improving, and he is expected to recover. His bride is a devoted nurse and has been attending to him for some time.

RIGID TESTS BY EXPERTS

Over a Hundred Firms Doing Business With Boston Under Observation.

AN inquiry into the purchase of supplies by the city and the method of awarding contracts is now being conducted by the Boston Finance Commission, and will probably be the subject of the next public hearing by the commission. Assistant Secretary R. H. Anderson of the commission has been engaged daily for the past two weeks in going over the books of the supply department, and a vast amount of data bearing upon the purchase of supplies is now in the hands of the commission.

At the same time Expert Accountant Edwin Scott M. Ross has been engaged in going over the books of the auditor's office, covering the amount paid for all classes of supplies, to whom paid and under what conditions. The examination of the books of the street, water and sewer departments relative to contracts awarded by those departments is being conducted by Expert Accountant Frederick A. Cason of the Eastern Audit Company.

Expert Street Street.

Samuel Watson, New York expert employed to investigate the street department, has during the past week nearly every day of his time in the city.

His investigation is being conducted by the street department or by contractors. The object of the investigation is to determine the character of the work being performed and the material being used, and to see that the city is getting the best value for its money.

THE KIND OF MAN "TOM" HIGSEN IS

As Told by a Blind Man at the Big League Convention at Faneuil Hall.

THE following story of the kind of a man Thomas L. Higsen was told in the Independence League convention, in which the Springfield man was nominated for Governor, by Washington A. Coles, a blind man.

It was entirely unexpected by the delegates and officers of the convention, and was told in an intensely dramatic way at the close of the convention.

By Washington A. Coles.

"Let me tell you who the real Tom Higsen is. You know him for what he has done since attaining manhood, you respect him for the great battle he has made against the most powerful and relentless of industrial foes, while I have known him since childhood and have loved him as boy and man.

"I have lived in Boston many years. When a boy I went to school with Tom. We played together, we grew up together. In his long life he was honest, truthful and lovable, and his manhood has proved the truth of the old adage that 'the boy is father of the man.'

"As a young man I went on the road and we were separated and saw nothing of each other for many years. I heard about him from time to time, through reading in the newspapers of his stubborn fight against the Standard Oil, for the American right to be a freeman in trade and business.

"I cannot see him as he sits here on the platform. I cannot see you, my friends, who are listening to my voice. Once I had all the faculties with which God endows and blesses mortal creatures. My affliction came upon me suddenly. It happened in a most peculiar way. One night I lay down to sleep in a full possession of every faculty. It has been night for me ever since.

"When I awoke that next morning and opened my eyes I was stone blind. And no man who has not been bereft of his sight can know what it means to go through life and not be able to see his fellow men and the beautiful things of nature.

Higsen Aids Old Friend.

"I had saved a little money, but it quickly disappeared. I tried many doctors and for several years did nothing but make endeavors to regain my lost vision. But it was not to be.

"It was while I was despairing most of my old friend came to see me. I shall never forget that visit. Putting his arms around my shoulders and calling me by the old playful name of our chum days, he said:

"Wash, old man, cheer up, cheer up."

"Never shall I forget how he came to me then, after many years of separation, immediately on learning of my affliction, and of the encouragement and cheer he gave me. I was in a very poor condition financially. My little savings had all been spent on doctors. He said to me, 'I have learned all about how you are fixed. I know your money is gone. It is time your friends did something for you, and you must let us do it. I am going to see the boys and get up a benefit for you, and you shall have nothing to say against it.'

"Tom Higsen did it. He got up the benefit. It was quite successful, and, after it was over, he came to me and placed two little pieces of paper in my hand. They were only two pieces of paper, but they had been issued by the Government, and each one represented a hundred dollars. That's but one instance, my friends, of what Tom Higsen has done for his friends. It's but a small idea of the kind of a man the real Tom Higsen is.

Can It Be My Old Friend?

"I have not attended a convention in a great many years. When my wife read to me the story of the Independence League gathering that was to be held at the hotel the night before the convention, and that the probable candidate for Governor, Thomas L. Higsen, would be there, I said to her: 'Thomas L. Higsen! I wonder if that can be my old friend Tom?'

"And I couldn't rest easy until I found out whether it was or not. If it was, I wanted to hear his voice and I wanted to shake him by the hand. Sending for a friend, I asked him to take me to the hotel. Arriving there, Mr. Higsen was told that I had come. Breaking away from congratulations, he rushed to me, and we renewed our boyhood days again.

"And today I am in this convention, and I have asked the privilege of telling you who the real Tom Higsen is. You have done yourselves an honor in nominating him for Governor, and, if the people credit in electing as Governor such a splendid type of man as Tom Higsen."

COLD REASON "CUTS ICE"

And cold reason used in the buying of your piano is the one thing and the only thing that "cuts any ice." We don't boom any special piano and don't care what make of piano you buy. We have all makes. We would like you to use your reason in the matter of PRICE; there's where your reasoning powers will "cut ice" for you. You know, without any information from us, which are the best pianos, and you also know that the makers at their gilded stores charge you a big fat, outrageous trust price for their instruments. Now, if you use your cold reason on PRICE, we will save you a hundred or two on the purchase of any known make of piano.

$5 Down—$1 a Week

The cold piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-priced sales agents, their sales commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.
